Message from the President

President, Tokyo University of Foreign Studies

Hiroataka Tateishi

The need to foster global human resources is of paramount concern today in all areas of industry, government, and academia. Globalization has been making dramatic advances with the advent of the 21st century, blurring the lines between domestic and overseas markets and bringing about massive movements of people and commodities across national borders.

As economies, societies, and cultures are drawn into the whirlwind of globalization, people are needed who see things from an all-encompassing bird's-eye perspective and who can make appropriate decisions within a broad, global context.

Tokyo University of Foreign Studies ensures that its students leave with excellent language training and a deep knowledge of the world's cultures and societies so that they will be able to make meaningful contribution to the globalization process. TUFS has been fostering global human resources for 150 years, going back to the days of its precursor, the Bansho Shirabesho, an institution for the study and translation of Western books and diplomatic documents established by the shogunate at the end of the Edo period in the latter half of the 1800s.

Outstanding global leaders are independent, assertive, and willing to undertake challenges. TUFS assists its students in acquiring these characteristics through diverse academic and extra-curricular activities. Our objective is to foster our students' creativity and critical thinking skills so that they will become multilingual global citizens, active throughout the world.

As Japan's only national university for the humanities and social sciences with a name indicative of its specialized focus, we believe we are uniquely positioned in this 21st century of globalization to accumulate global knowledge and interact with the global society.

Top Global University JAPAN

TUFS connects resources worldwide

From the world to Japan and from Japan to the world

TUFS was selected as a Top Global University by the Ministry of Education, Culture, Sports, Science and Technology (MEXT) in 2014. With this designation, TUFS receives funding to serve as a key educational hub connecting worldwide resources under the slogan, “From the world to Japan and from Japan to the world.”

TUFS Future Vision

- To develop multilingual, competent, globally-minded students and staff
- To enhance Japan's global presence
- To provide consulting services for the globalization of Japanese universities

TUFS Three Main Targets

Developing multi-lingual globally-minded students and staff

- 'Joint Education Program'
- Double number of students going abroad and number of students coming to Japan
- Transparent Evaluation Model for foreign language acquisition
- An academic year divided into quarters to enable individually-tailored and forward-looking study
- Multilingual teaching curriculum

Enhancing Japan's global presence

- 'Global Japan Offices' in worldwide locations
- Enhanced Japanese-language program to be implemented throughout the university

Consulting services for the globalization of Japanese universities

- Deployment of TUFS Student Mobility Center
- Shared use of 'Global Japan Offices'

TUFS FY2016 Progress

Study Abroad

Increasing number of TUFS students studying abroad

- The number of TUFS students who studied abroad increased by 573 compared to before starting the project, with most participating in short-term courses at partner institutions.
- An online information system called 'Tadaima Kaigai Ryugakuchu' was launched as a unique risk management tool for TUFS students studying abroad.

2013/2016 Students Studying Abroad

Global Japan Offices

'Japanese-language education and Japanese studies'

- New Global Japan Offices were established for the dissemination of information on Japanese language and culture at International University for the Humanities and Development (Turkmenistan) and Vytautas Magnus University (Lithuania).
- Already existing ten offices continue to disseminate information on Japanese language and culture, and this year the three coordinators at each of these offices were invited to Japan for an information session.

CEFR-J Project

Proficiency in all the 27 major languages assessed on the basis of unified criteria

- CEFR-J is an adaptation of the international CEFR standard with more detailed criteria for lower-level users. A sample language proficiency indicator was prepared in English as part of an effort to establish an indicator based on CEFR-J. In addition, discussions were held with teachers of 26 non-English languages to share their experiences with course curricula, instruction methods, student assessment, and availability of teaching materials and language resources.

CEFR-J Project

27 languages taught at TUFS

English, German, Polish, Czech, French, Italian, Spanish, Portuguese, Russian, Mongolian, Chinese, Korean, Filipino, Indonesian, Malay, Burmese, Thai, Lao, Vietnamese, Cambodian, Urdu, Hindi, Bengali, Arabic, Persian, Turkish, Japanese

Promotion of Japan Studies

This is a MEXT Functional Enhancement Project undertaken by TUFS from academic year 2015.

The public university reform plan drafted by the Ministry of Education, Culture, Sports, Science and Technology (MEXT) on November 26, 2013, calls for universities to leverage their strengths and features to the maximum to achieve high added value that will make them more internationally competitive. Under this reform plan, universities redefine their missions to promote functional enhancement. For TUFS, this has meant establishing an educational and research system for Japanese language education and Japan studies from an international perspective. As a public university, TUFS also broadly disseminates the outcome of research on Japan, and these proactive efforts qualified TUFS for the special financial assistance offered by MEXT since fiscal year 2015.

TUFS Inviting International Scholars for Japan Studies

By functioning as a hub for prominent Japanese scholars and Japan studies, TUFS invites international Japanese researchers.

TUFS Reorganization of Teaching Staff

The Japan-related teaching staff at the Institute of Global Studies, the International Center for Japanese Studies, and the Japanese Language Center for International Students have been reassigned to the newly established Institute of Japan Studies to strengthen the university's research and educational subjects from an international, comprehensive perspective.

TUFS Reorganization of Master's Program

The master's program has been reorganized with the launching of the Japan Studies Program to promote the study of Japan and Japanese language from an international perspective.

TUFS Japan Studies Program

The Japan Studies Program, since academic year 2016, has enabled all TUFS students, including exchange students, to cultivate their knowledge of Japan by studying Japanese language, culture, history and society. Its classes are conducted in either Japanese or English.

African Studies Center

African Studies Center
Tokyo University of Foreign Studies

The African Studies Center (ASC-TUFS) was established in April 2017 as a new research center at Tokyo University of Foreign Studies. This is a research center focusing mainly on issues that contemporary Africa is facing, as its Japanese appellation of Gendai Africa Chiiki Kenkyu Center can be literally translated as Center for Area Studies on Contemporary Africa.

In Japan, the ASC-TUFS is one of the few university centers on African studies and the only one clearly labeled as focusing on contemporary Africa. This is especially significant given Africa's importance in today's world. Recently, the Japanese government has made considerable efforts to strengthen Japan's relationships with the countries of Africa, such as through the Tokyo International Conference on African Development (TICAD), but even more substantial efforts to tackle the problems confronting contemporary Africa are required to further develop Japan's ties in Africa. The ASC-TUFS is expected to play a key role in this regard through research, education, and networking.

Contemporary Africa is distinguished by its rapid social changes and the great diversity of those involved in making those changes. A strong network that will benefit all concerned needs to be constructed. That shall include not only international and government organizations, NGOs, and the private sector, but also academic institutions. This kind of multi-faceted network will be indispensable for understanding Africa's changing features. We are ready to serve as the hub for just such a network.

"Area studies" is another key phrase included in the Japanese name of the ASC-TUFS. Contemporary Africa is currently being challenged to reduce poverty, sustain economic development, build peace, and cope with the serious effects of climate changes. Tackling these challenges requires in-depth knowledge based on multiple academic disciplines, and the ASC-TUFS will provide just the kind of inter-disciplinary approach that is required in its research activities.

Tokyo University of Foreign Studies has long been a leader in African studies in Japan, and already has Research Institute for Languages and Cultures of Asia and Africa (ILCAA), as well as an African Studies course in its School of International and Area Studies. Learning foreign languages is inseparably related to learning about the culture, society, politics, economy, and history of the speakers of those languages. TUFS has been offering in-depth language and area studies since its establishment, and therefore offers a fertile environment in which the new African Studies Center is certain to flourish.

The ASC-TUFS will have three main objectives: developing an extensive network among the many and diverse organizations involved in Africa; undertaking in-depth and high-quality African studies; and fostering the development of specialists with deep knowledge and love of Africa and its people. Your continued support and encouragement will be most appreciated as we strive to achieve these objectives.

Graduate Programs: Graduate School of Global Studies

The graduate program began in 1966 as a Master's Program in Foreign Language Studies. In 1992, the program was redesigned and expanded into the Master's and Doctoral Programs in Area and Culture Studies, thus encompassing not only foreign language studies but also the study of regions and cultures. In 2009, TUFS consolidated the programs into the Graduate School of Global Studies. In 2017, the graduate programs TUFS offers are:

Master's Program

1. Global Studies
2. Japan Studies

Doctoral Program

1. Language and Culture Studies
2. International and Area Studies

Undergraduate Programs: School of Language and Culture Studies School of International and Area Studies

The undergraduate programs provide students with deep understanding and knowledge of diverse languages, cultures, and societies, and nurtures their ability to think critically and express their own ideas articulately. Students are required to choose a major from among the 27 languages and 14 areas. Each student studies his/her selected major language and area in first and second year. In the third and fourth years, students take specialized courses. There are three specialized courses in each school.

School of Language and Culture Studies

1. Language and Information Studies
2. Applied Language and Communication Studies
3. Culture and Literary Studies

School of International and Area Studies

1. Area Studies
2. Contemporary Global Studies
3. International Relations

Research Institute for Languages and Cultures of Asia and Africa

The Research Institute for Languages and Cultures of Asia and Africa (ILCAA, or AA-ken) is an affiliate of TUFS charged with the following three undertakings:

- (1) Conducting collaborative research projects
- (2) Processing, editing, and disseminating data on the languages and cultures of Asia and Africa
- (3) Training junior scholars through joint research, workshops, and seminars

Japanese Language Center for International Students

JLCTUFS (Japanese Language Center for International Students, TUFS) is one of the largest Japanese language institutions in the world and has a 46-year history. In 2012, JLCTUFS was certified by MEXT as a center for Japanese language education, educational resources development, and practical training, and today serves as a global hub for TJSOL (Teaching Japanese to Speakers of Other Languages) training.

The Center mainly accepts government-funded international students as well as students from universities with which TUFS has an exchange partnership.

TUFS International Students at TUFS

TUFS has actively accepted students with diverse cultural backgrounds from all over the world to train professionals with global perspectives who are knowledgeable in languages, cultures, and societies of various regions.

Degree Program

■ Undergraduates:

TUFS has two undergraduate programs, the School of Language and Culture Studies for learning Japanese language and the School of International and Area Studies for Japanese area studies. Of the international students, 30 enrolled after passing the domestic entrance examinations, while another 10 applied from overseas through the pre-arrival admissions program. They study together with Japanese students.

■ Graduates:

There are a total of 211 international students enrolled in the programs offered by the Graduate School of Global Studies. Classes are primarily conducted in Japanese, but all the lectures in the Peace and Conflict Studies and International Cooperation Studies programs are conducted in English.

Non-degree Program

■ Exchange Students:

The International Student Exchange Program (ISEP-TUFS) is designed for inbound international exchange students. It provides them with the opportunity to acquire a firm understanding of Japanese culture and to deepen their perspectives on current international issues at an academic level.

■ Research Students:

These are either MEXT (Ministry of Education, Culture, Sports, Science and Technology: Japanese Government) scholarship students or self-funded students enrolled in TUFS undergraduate, graduate or Japanese Language Center (JLC) programs to conduct research on specific topics, as well as study the Japanese language and related areas of specialization.

■ Japanese Studies Students (Nikkensei):

These are MEXT scholarship students studying the language, education and culture of Japan.

■ Teacher Training Students:

Teacher Training Students are educators in elementary and secondary schools in their home countries. They are enrolled in JLC as MEXT scholarship students for advanced training in Japanese language education.

■ Pre-undergraduate Students:

These are MEXT scholarship students undergoing preparatory training prior to entering undergraduate programs in Japan. Their study focuses on improvement of Japanese language proficiency and the acquisition of knowledge in their area of specialization to prepare them to study alongside Japanese undergraduate students.

TUFS On-Campus Residence

On-campus accommodation in convenient, quiet and green surroundings is available for international students, Japanese students, and international researchers. Residents can enjoy many Japanese cultural events and international exchange activities such as tea ceremony and Japanese calligraphy.

Residence No. 2 : 90 rooms

( 72 single, 12 double, 6 family)

Residence No. 3 : 230 rooms

( 230 single )

* No.3 is a residence for both Japanese students and international students. No.1 and No.2 are only for international students.

TUFS Office for International Affairs

✉ kokusai-kyoten@tufs.ac.jp

The Office for International Affairs is responsible for developing and strengthening TUFS' partnerships with academic institutions overseas, and establishing a global network. The office also works to accommodate researchers from around the world, promote exchanges of scholars as well as students, plan and organize staff training programs, and in other ways contribute to the creation of a multilingual and multicultural campus.

As part of efforts to create a truly global academic environment at TUFS, the Office for International Affairs is also charged with managing international projects such as the Top Global University Project, the Inter-University Exchange Project and the Promotion of Japan Studies.

TUFS Student Mobility Center

✉ ryugakushien@tufs.ac.jp

The TUFS Student Mobility Center is open for both outbound and inbound Japanese and international students, including non-TUFS students.

For outbound students, we:

- Provide advice and tips on study abroad options
- Host pre-departure orientations
- Collect and provide information about various study-abroad programs including short-term programs, exchange programs, etc.
- Host information sessions regarding visa, crisis management and scholarships

For inbound students, we:

- Provide advice and tips on studying in Japan
- Host community support programs
- Host Short Stay Summer/Winter Program

TUFS Global Admission Office

✉ gao@tufs.ac.jp

The Global Admission Office is responsible for inquiries from overseas regarding enrollment in TUFS, manages the TUFS Japanese Language and Japan Studies Program (with financial support from MEXT which provides Japanese government scholarships for International Priority Undergraduate Programs), and processes applications from international research students.

Japanese Educational Programs

いろいろにほ

As a hub for Japanese education, the Japanese Language Center for International Students (JLC) implements a variety of Japanese education programs, including:

- (1) Japanese language education for Pre-undergraduate Students (MEXT scholarship students)
- (2) The Japanese Language Program of TUFS (JLPTUFS)
- (3) Short Stay Summer/Winter Program

JLPTUFS is specifically charged with improving the Japanese language skills of all international students at TUFS. The curriculum is designed for students who require Japanese for their studies and research. In the fall term of 2016, there were 246 foreign students from 57 countries and areas studying in JLCTUFS. These students, all with diverse cultural backgrounds, learn together inside and outside classroom and also participate in cultural exchange with Japanese students. This program is held for 13 weeks each term.

The Short Stay Programs are three-week intensive programs for learners of Japanese language who are currently enrolled in partner and other institutions.

TUFS The University Crest

History: In 1899, when the School of Foreign Languages was separated from Koto Shogyo Gakko and renamed Tokyo Gaikokugo Gakko (Tokyo School of Foreign Languages), the School head at the time, Naibu Kanda, and the school board members selected the school crest, the torch symbolizing setting the world afire with knowledge, and the letter “L” from the Latin word “lingua,” meaning “language.” The feathers of the wings on both sides are said to represent the School’s departments, which initially numbered eight.
