★ Simple English : この授業は、英語のみによる講義に慣れていない学生向けに、より平易な英語で開講されます。成績は原則として英語力ではなく、講義の内容についての理解力に基づいて評価されます。

This course is taught in simpler language than regular lectures in English. It is especially recommended to students who are not familiar with lectures taught in English only. Students are assessed by their level of understanding of the course content rather than by their English language level.

履修者数を制限するため、担当教員による抽選・選抜がおこなわれる場合があります。Simple English クラスでは、英語による講義に慣れていない学部生の履修が優先されます。履修希望者の数によっては、ISEP 生はこのクラスを履修できない可能性があります。

To limit the number of students, the instructor might conduct a lottery or selection to determine who can register for the course. In Simple English courses, priority will be given to the undergraduates who are not used to lectures in English. ISEP students might not be able to take the course if the instructor should reduce class size.

*国際日本学部と共通開講 Also offered as a course in the School of Japan Studies

● 導入科目 Introductory Courses

★ Simple English : この授業は、英語のみによる講義に慣れていない学生向けに、より平易な英語で開講されます。成績は原則として英語力ではなく、講義の内容についての理解力に基づいて評価されます。

This course is taught in simpler language than regular lectures in English. It is especially recommended to students who are not familiar with lectures taught in English only. Students are assessed by their level of understanding of the course content rather than by their English language level.

Simple English クラスでは、英語による講義に慣れていない学部生の履修が優先されます。履修希望者の数によっては、ISEP 生はこのクラスを履修できない可能性があります。

In Simple English courses, priority will be given to the undergraduates who are not used to lectures in English. ISEP students might not be able to take the course if the instructor should reduce class size.

★ Simple English : この授業は、英語のみによる講義に慣れていない学生向けに、より平易な英語で開講されます。成績は原則として英語力ではなく、講義の内容についての理解力に基づいて評価されます。

This course is taught in simpler language than regular lectures in English. It is especially recommended to students who are not familiar with lectures taught in English only. Students are assessed by their level of understanding of the course content rather than their English language level.

履修者数を制限するため、担当教員による抽選・選抜がおこなわれる場合があります。Simple English クラスでは、英語による講義に慣れていない学部生の履修が優先されます。履修希望者の数によっては、ISEP 生はこのクラスを履修できない可能性があります。

To limit the number of students, the instructor might conduct a lottery or selection to determine who can register for the course. In Simple English courses, priority will be given to the undergraduates who are not used to lectures in English. ISEP students might not be able to take the course if the instructor should reduce class size.

Intercultural Communication and Miscommunication
森田 京子 MORITA, Kyoko	春 Spring	金 4 Fri.4
Key concepts will be reviewed at the beginning of the course: verbal and nonverbal aspects of communication (e.g. pragmatic failure, silence, kinesic channeling, personal spacing, temporal dimension) and the politics of cultural difference. In the latter part of the course, emphasis will be on the students' analyzing their own and others' socio-culturally shaped ways of believing, valuing, and interacting in order to identify and understand potential sources of miscommunication, and to develop interpersonal strategies to resolve conflicts. The class will be interactive and flexible, including activities, simulations, discussions, and presentations.

国際社会と地域 1/人間と環境 A		19180008/180150
Topics in Global Issues and Human Interests
ヤップ YAP, Cherry Amor	春 Spring	木 5 Thu.5
In recent years, the Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) have gained widespread attention, with governments, corporations, and educational institutions emphasizing their importance. While learning about the SDGs is certainly relevant in today's world, the true value lies in the ability to critically examine the complex issues underlying each of the 17 goals. This course aims to equip students with the tools to engage thoughtfully with these global challenges, empowering them to become informed and active global citizens through a deeper understanding of the SDGs.

国際社会と地域 1/国際社会をひもとく A		19180013/180141
Development and Sustainable Development Goals
モワハド MOWAHED, Hasibullah	春 Spring	月 2 Mon.2
The United Nations and developed countries have made many efforts for developing countries to achieve development. These efforts have been reflected in the form of development goals such as Millennium Development Goals and Sustainable Development Goals. This course will pave the way for the students to understand the United Nations' initiatives and missions regarding development issues in the Sustainable Development Goals framework.

Exploring Mental Health Topics Through Interactive Group Work
奥山 ルシンダ OKUYAMA, Lucinda	夏 Summer	集中 Intensive
Have you ever heard of imposter syndrome, OCD, narcissism, PTSD, chronic stress or schizophrenia? These conditions impact millions of people globally, yet are often misunderstood. In this course we will explore the symptoms and treatments of these conditions. We will do this through watching short TED-Ed animations that summarise each condition and complete short exercises to test our knowledge. Additionally, students will work together and lead the class in order to deeply engage with each topic.

国際社会と地域 1/国際社会をひもとく A		19180015/180142
Introduction to Tourism Management
メルヴィン MELVIN, John	夏 Summer	集中 Intensive
The purpose of this course is to provide students with an understanding of tourism. You will gain an overview of the scale, scope and organization of the tourism sector and consider the positive and negative impacts of tourism on destinations. Through a range of international case studies, we will learn about the development of destinations' natural, built and cultural resources and how these can be managed and enjoyed sustainably. Students will engage in additional learning opportunities such as in-class discussions and a group project, focusing on tourism-related issues at a particular destination. As an introductory course, students will encounter some of the fundamental issues and theories relating to the study of tourism.

International Law I
佐藤 義明 SATO, Yoshiaki	秋 Fall	火 4 Tue.4
The primary object of this course is to introduce the framework of International Law. It will focus on its function in world politics through readings, news articles, and judgements of the courts.

国際社会と地域 2/人間と環境 B		19180018/180159
Culture, Identity and Human Violence
アップハミラゲ APPUHAMILAGE, Udeni	秋 Fall	木 2 Thu.2
This course introduces and critically examines the reciprocal connections between culture, identity and human violence from a framework informed by theories and research from two social sciences, namely, psychology and anthropology.

国際社会と地域 2/地球社会と共生 1B ★Simple English		19180019/180014
Culture, Power, Identities
森田 京子 MORITA, Kyoko	秋 Fall	金 4 Fri.4
This course focuses on social minorities in various countries, taking into account their struggles due to inequality of power and identity politics. Students will need to understand what it is like to live as a person from minority groups in the oppressive environment. At the same time, students will discuss controversies over current political correctness and silencing in minority studies, as well as in everyday life.

国際社会と地域 2/国際社会をひもとく B		19180020/180045
The United Nations and its Refugee Agency
中村 恵 NAKAMURA, Megumi	秋 Fall	月 2 Mon.2
Since its establishment, the United Nations (UN) has been the centerpiece of world order, playing a preeminent role in the issues of international peace and security, development, human rights and humanitarian affairs. UNHCR, the UN Refugee Agency, is a UN organization, dedicated to saving lives, protecting rights and building a better future for refugees, forcibly displaced communities and stateless people. The course will focus specifically on the UNHCR, and students will learn about an example of a UN staff career, as well as Sadako Ogata, who served as the 8th UN High Commissioner for Refugees. Students will also learn about the various activities of the UN through group sharing and presentations. Guest speakers may be invited to the class.

多文化社会 1/人間と環境 A1		19180029/180152
Introduction to Global Agri-food Systems
ロリーニ LOLLINI, Niccolo	春 Spring	木 5 Thu.5
The course provides a critical view on the development and current state of agriculture and food governance at the global level and at the national level with a focus on Japan's case. The course relies on various theoretical-disciplinary frameworks including agricultural economics, international political economy, geography, and rural sociology. Key topics addressed in this course include processes of agrarian transformation, agricultural policy formation, food supply chains governance, sustainability issues in food production, food sovereignty and alternative food networks.

多文化社会 2/地球社会と共生 2B		19180032/180017
[COIL] Education, Peace and Culture
福田 彩 FUKUDA, Aya	春 Spring	金 1 Fri.1
This course mainly consists of four components: theoretical learning, case studies, collaborative online international learning (COIL), and proposal-making as problem-solving. Theoretical learning overviews related theories focused on education, learning and brain, culture, peace, conflict, violence, international law, international organizations, peace education, and COIL with a focus on fostering discussions. The case study discusses the peace education programs conducted in the conflict-affected areas. In proposal-making, students design the peace education program by applying learned theories and knowledge gained through interaction with students in the classroom and other countries. There are several COIL opportunities for students that help them gain different and various perspectives with students in other countries such as Cambodia, India, Pakistan, the Philippines, and the US (TBD).
多文化社会 1/地球社会と共生 2B		19180035/180021
[COIL] International Education and Intercultural Competence
福田 彩 FUKUDA, Aya	秋 Fall	木 2 Thu.2
This course mainly consists of three parts: theoretical learning, collaborative online international learning (COIL), and learning-by-teaching. Theoretical learning overviews related theories on intercultural competence, culture, identity, education, international education, teaching, learning and instructional design. COIL will be conducted with universities in Japan, the Philippines and the US. Students will be asked to participate in collaborative activities and discussion opportunities with students both in their classroom and overseas. Learning-by-teaching is for students to develop a lesson plan to nurture intercultural competence for their classmates using learned theories and online session experiences. Finally, students implement a lesson plan for their classmates and receive feedback.
多文化社会 2/地球社会と共生 2B		19180036/180022
[COIL] Digital Platforms for Intercultural Communication Course Syllabus
TBA	秋 Fall	月 5 Mon.5
The course on Digital Platforms for Intercultural Communication aims to provide students with both theoretical understanding and practical abilities to effectively engage in cross-cultural conversations utilizing digital platforms. The course explores the intercultural dynamics, offering a comprehensive view of how digital tools might be employed to bridge cultural divides and tackle global issues. In addition to traditional digital platforms such as Discord, Line, and Facebook, this course integrates the exploration of new media like the Metaverse. As an emerging virtual space, the metaverse offers unprecedented opportunities for immersive communication and cultural exchange. By engaging with the metaverse and other cutting-edge technologies, students will explore how these platforms can be leveraged to create more engaging and impactful intercultural experiences, pushing the boundaries of how we connect and collaborate across cultures. This course combines fundamental principles from information technology and innovation dissemination to offer a complete foundation for comprehending the intricacies of digital communication in international environments. Furthermore, by integrating Collaborative Online International Learning (COIL) sessions and prioritizing Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs), the course highlights the significance of worldwide cooperation in tackling urgent challenges that impact communities globally.

Invisible Women: Debating Feminism in Japan
邵 丹 SHAO, Dan	春 Spring	水 3 Wed.3
The term "gender," which refers to socially and culturally constructed sex, as opposed to sex as a biological category, has become an analytical concept since the 1970s. In the field of gender studies, which is not a fixed academic discipline, women's experiences, roles, status, ideas, and contributions are interdisciplinarily focused on. This course will look at issues that are important to women and their lives from five perspectives: family, education, profession, media, and sexual violence. In the meantime, the opinions of women from various social classes, cultures, countries, communities, and racial-ethnic backgrounds, as well as women of various ages and sexual orientations will be highlighted during the discussion of gender issues.
文化と芸術 2/世界の文化 B		19180059/180133
History of Twentieth-Century Hollywood Cinema
入江 哲朗 IRIE, Tetsuro	秋 Fall	金 1 Fri.1
This course offers a broad survey of Hollywood cinema, spanning from its beginnings to the end of the twentieth century. Hollywood first established its worldwide influence with the so-called "studio system" and the style of classical Hollywood cinema. Since then, it has experienced both highs and lows, including the end of the Golden Age and the rise of the New Hollywood. Despite these fluctuations, Hollywood cinema has remained a significant and popular art form. This course will trace the eventful history of twentieth-century Hollywood cinema, examining not only the films themselves but also their cultural, social, and intellectual contexts.
文化と芸術 2/文化のおもしろさ B1		19180060/180130
Examining British Culture Through Film
プライス PRICE, Gareth	秋 Fall	火 5 Tue.5
This course will introduce a different aspect of British culture every week. Students will watch a movie before each class which highlights a specific aspect of British culture. Students will then learn about this in class, and discuss it in relation to the film they watched.
文化と芸術 2/文化のおもしろさ B1		19180064/180132
Reflections on Translation: Topics in Translation Studies
邵 丹 SHAO, Dan	秋 Fall	水 3 Wed.3
Practices of translation are always concerned with context as well as text in Translation Studies. This course will investigate this concern on how contexts change through a study of transcultural adaptations, which will be done via the use of familiar narratives and the tracking of their cultural circulation. To be more specific, this course examines the cultural translation of literature, gender, films, theater in different times and cultural settings by looking at how shifts in the narrative, images, dialogue, and translation will foreground different ideas.
文化と芸術 2/世界の文化 B ★Simple English		19180065/180136
Topics in the History of American Racism Through Literature
ティンダル TYNDALL, Regan	秋 Fall	月 2 Mon.2
The class will feature lectures, student discussion, and individual tasks. Students are required to do outside reading (mainly of short passages) in order to prepare for and discuss issues in the next class, and students will write short written responses to the texts studied. Students will do two different presentations (to small groups). There will be two reading-review quizzes, and one in-class essay in the final class. Students' contribution to in-class discussions will be observed and noted by the instructor. All communication in class will be conducted in English.
環境と科学 1/人間と環境 A1		19180079/180155
Introduction to Info-Powered Energy (Invited Relay Lectures)
横川 慎二/他 YOKOGAWA, Shinji/Others	春 Spring	木 2 Thu.2
In this course, you will learn about the latest developments in technologies for creating, storing, and effectively using energy, and explore how these technologies can enrich our lives. Through a series of lectures by leading experts in their fields, students will deepen their understanding of how these technologies address societal challenges and their potential as solutions.

Specifically, lectures will begin with basic concepts and progressively deepen the knowledge so that even beginning students can easily understand. Through ALH, students will also learn about the latest developments in energy research and industry's vision of a sustainable future society, and will examine these topics from multiple perspectives.

Aging and Public Policies in Contemporary Japanese Society
ヤン ズィー YAN, Zi	春 Spring	木 2 Thu.2
This course provides an overview of the various challenges faced by Japan, including a hyper-aging and declining population, rising numbers of relatively poor, and growing income inequalities. We will also discuss how to ensure basic living standards amidst the aforementioned challenges from the perspectives of “family,” “community,” “business and market,” and “government.” The course consists of two major parts. Part I introduces you to the “theoretical lenses to contemporary public policy”, we will develop an in-depth understanding of what public policy is and how policy is shaped. In Part II, students will explore the historical, social, economic, and political context of Japan’s aging society and critically analyze the social welfare policies that have been implemented to address the needs of older adults. The course will also examine the challenges and opportunities that Japan’s aging society presents for social welfare policy and explore innovative approaches to aging and social welfare policy in Japan.

日本の現在を知る 1/世界の中の日本 A		19180100/180169
Multicultural Japan: Communities, Identities, and Movements
オブライエン O'BRIEN, Dylan	春 Spring	水 3 Wed.3
First under the rubric of kokusaika (internationalism) and now tabunka kyosei (multicultural coexistence), post-war Japanese business, civil society, governance, and religions have approached Japan's shifting

demographic make-up and relations with the broader world. With a rapidly greying population, groups such as foreign migrants, study-abroad students, and returnees are increasingly visible everywhere, from the media to policy discussions. This course asks students to adopt a social science perspective and consider the trajectory of discussions about multiculturalism in Japanese society. Specifically, students will consider not only who is different from - to paraphrase the late Harumi Befu (2001) - a hegemonically homogeneous “Japanese” subject, but the sociocultural processes through which various groups are “Othered.” Instead of multiculturalism as a neutral, objective recognition of human difference, this course will challenge students to see multiculturalism as a specific mode of organizing – culturally, economically, politically – real and imagined human difference. Adopting the lens of cultural anthropology, we will examine key events, groups, and movements. Students will learn how cultural, economic, philosophical, political, and religious forces have impacted how human difference is understood. By grappling with the specific experiences of different groups, this course asks students to consider the interface between particular identities and practices and how others conceptualize them outside of those communities. Students who complete this course will gain an awareness of various debates within contemporary Japanese society and an understanding of different minority groups’ experiences and perspectives. Students will practice and develop social science research skills through a semester-long project.

Disasters in Contemporary Japan and Asia
フィゲロア FIGUEROA, Pablo	夏 Summer	集中 Intensive
Despite advances in technology, governments and societies across Asia find it hard to deal with catastrophes effectively. Recent disasters such as the giant tsunami triggered by the Great East Japan Earthquake have shown that there are many lessons to be learnt in terms of disaster prevention and response. In this class, students will become familiar with the anthropogenic causes and consequences of so-called natural and man-made disasters. Moreover, they will acquire the analytical tools to place contemporary catastrophes in context, such as the Fukushima nuclear catastrophe, the Bhopal disaster, etc. Perspectives on how to cope with disaster will be discussed, and special attention will be paid to those aspects concerned with disaster prevention, mitigation, and response.

Globalization and Social Change
フィゲロア FIGUEROA, Pablo	夏 Summer	集中 Intensive
Globalization is a key concept utilized in a wide range of fields such as economics, politics, education, and culture. However, although often discussed, the term is seldom clearly defined, and arguments about its nature tend to polarize opinions in irreconcilable ways. In this class we will aim to explore the characteristics of globalization, and discuss from multiple angles the social changes it has generated. We will attempt to do this in a twofold manner: on the one hand, by placing the discussion in the contemporary world society; on the other hand, we will discuss the actual implications that globalization has in the lives of people, organizations and cultures. How has Japan and Asia been transformed as a product of globalization? What have been, so far, its measurable effects? How can globalization help alleviate poverty and bring about world peace? What is the role of the Japanese state in highly contested processes of social change? Reflecting on these issues will help students build a solid conceptual framework for analyzing the global society, Japan’s place in the world, and its changing sociopolitical dynamics.

Japan-Southeast Asia International Relations
バルボア BALBOA, Jenny De Asis	秋 Fall	水 4 Wed.4
Japan and the nations of Southeast Asia have cultivated strong economic and diplomatic ties over the past decades. Japan’s economic relations with ASEAN member countries contributed to building a more prosperous and peaceful region. Japan has been ASEAN’s most important economic partner, while ASEAN is recognized by Japan as an economic and strategic partner. While the ties were initially based on economic cooperation, the relationship has broadened and now encompasses political and security cooperation. In the past decades, however, the regional economic and political landscape has been changing due to the rise of China, the challenges in domestic politics among ASEAN members, and Japan’s economic challenges. Those changes are reshaping the contemporary relations of Japan and ASEAN.
This course will mainly focus on the economic and politico-security cooperation between Japan and ASEAN. We will also discuss the strategic partners in the cooperation, mainly the US and China, to provide a global perspective and understand the historical and contemporary context of cooperation and conflict among states.

International Political Economy of East Asia
バルボア BALBOA, Jenny De Asis	冬 Winter	集中 Intensive
Despite a turbulent past, and against the backdrop of volatile regional politics, East Asia achieved remarkable economic growth during the so-called miracle economy years of the post-war up to the 1990s. At present, however, the East Asian region is facing several economic and political challenges that have major implications for its economic and political stability. In this course, the factors that propelled the East Asian economic growth and the issues and challenges to sustain regional growth and stability are examined. After introducing the main economic features of the region, the first half of the course discusses Japan's developmental state model, which is essential in understanding Japan's post-war industrialization and economic development. The varieties of the "guided development" model and their impact on other East Asian states will then be discussed. The second half of the course examines the current issues in the region and explores the challenges that East Asian states face in pursuing further growth and development.

Reading Japanese Literature in English Translation
キョウ QIAO, Mina	春 Spring	水 3 Wed.3
This course is designed for a close reading of Japanese literature in both the original and the translation. The texts are short stories by prestigious contemporary writers who are known for their mastery of the Japanese language. We will focus on the content as well as their command of words. Upon an understanding of the narrative, we will examine the differences between the original and the translation, and between two different translations. Is there anything "lost in translation?" How does the translation attempt to convey the nuance in the original to English readers? The course will enhance your understanding of the Japanese language and literature. The class discussion will be primarily conducted in English. Students of all Japanese levels are welcomed. The design may vary according to the Japanese proficiency of students enrolled. Do not be intimidated by the Japanese readings.

Language Diversity in Japan
久留須 健一郎 KURUSU, Kenichiro	夏 Summer	集中 Intensive
Japan is often assumed as a monolingual country with a single national language: Japanese. Practically, it is true that Japanese is used nationwide in almost every domain in the country, such as administration, legislation, education, and daily conversation. However, Japan is also home to various indigenous languages (e.g., Ainu and Ryukyuan), and non-indigenous languages (e.g., Chinese, Korean, Portuguese, Spanish, Tagalog, Vietnamese, English, etc.) as migrants and their descendants are also part of our society. As such, this course deals with the diversity of language in contemporary Japanese society. First, it introduces and makes students aware of the current diverse linguistic situation in Japanese society. Second, it discusses existing and emerging issues and challenges concerning the multilingual situation in Japanese society, considering the historical and socio-economical background and relevant theories and approaches. Finally, it provides relevant and necessary perspectives to address various issues and challenges in relation to the multilingual situation of Japanese society.

Japanese as a Global Language
久留須 健一郎 KURUSU, Kenichiro	冬 Winter	集中 Intensive
The Japanese language is one of the major global languages. Aside from more than 120 million native speakers mostly residing in Japan, it has also been used by Japanese emigrants and their descendants as a heritage or home language outside the country, such as in the United States (particularly in California and Hawaii), Brazil, Peru, China, Korea, and the Philippines. Conversely, immigrants and their descendants who are native to various non-Japanese languages also use the language as a migrant language as more than three million foreign nationals reside in Japan. Furthermore, approximately 3.8 million people learn the language as a foreign language worldwide as of 2021, and the number of learners has been increasing. As such, this course discusses various topics on the Japanese language as a global language. First, the course overviews the use of the Japanese language in the world. Second, the course discusses various problems and issues concerning the (socio)linguistic situation of Japanese in the world. Finally, the course encourages students to address current problems and issues and offers recommendations and suggestions to address these problems and issues.

Reading Space in Contemporary Japanese Literature: Reality and Beyond
キョウ QIAO, Mina	春 Spring	水 4 Wed.4
This course is designed to introduce you to Japanese contemporary authors and their works as well as present scholarly engagements with space in Japanese literature. The subject matter is the literary representations of space. The primary texts will demonstrate literary representations of various spaces including both urban and suburban Tokyo, other Japanese regions, and fantastical fictional spaces. The discussions will focus on the interactions between spaces and narratives. How do spaces uphold the narratives? How do the authors construct literary spaces to reflect the human psyche and social issues of this era? Because the central debates concern interdisciplinary researches, the course further aims to raise awareness about the urban/spatial approach. The course will examine contemporary literature against its (sub)urban setting on sociological, economic, cultural, and political levels, using Tokyo in postwar economic growth, recession, and globalization as a case study. Furthermore, we will discuss the prominent function of space in Japanese magical realism.

This course will provide a space for scholarly discussions on the body. The topics concern gender politics, the construction of sexuality, the physical versus the metaphysical, the carnal versus the spiritual, and the body in relation to individual identity and social norms. We will review literary representations of these discourses since the 1960s. We will explore how the authors utilize the body to voice their dilemmas and confusion, to challenge the conventions, and to reflect on contemporary Japanese society.

Japan's Capitals: Tokyo and Kyoto
モリス MORRIS, Jonathan	春 Spring	水 3 Wed.3
This course examines Japan's cultural capital Kyoto and its political capital Tokyo. Both cities were established as new power bases for elites, and the leading roles they have played in Japanese history and culture could very easily have been held by other locations. The circumstances that led to their founding are thus the necessary starting point. With the general historical background and development explained, this course goes on to provide a survey of the economy, religion, architecture, infrastructure and culture of Kyoto and Tokyo.

The use of realia and material culture, particularly maps, is a key teaching method. All students will write a report on an area of Tokyo or Kyoto using cartographic materials. The wider cultural impact of the cities is presented, with reference to tourism, publishing, film, music, art and literature in various periods. The crafts and consumer goods produced in traditional neighborhoods are another topic for study, and a class each will be devoted to the food culture of Kyoto and Tokyo past and present. Students will produce a research essay on a relevant topic of their choice with the guidance of the instructor.

Multiculturalism in Japan ★Simple English
森田 京子 MORITA, Kyoko	春 Spring	金 5 Fri.5
We will examine relations of difference and inequality in everyday practice to figure out how to make a difference towards Japan's social reform. For this purpose, we will consider various positions on the nature of human rights violation and identity politics, in terms of the interrelationships between blood/lineage, culture, power, and identities. Throughout we will take account of two aspects usually overlooked in the current minority controversy: i.e., intragroup diversity and multiplicity of social identity.

Film Analysis
ハウカンブ HAUKAMP, Iris	春 Spring	火 2 Tue.2
This is an introductory class to 'classical' film analysis. We will explore how films 'work', how they convey meaning, and how a two-dimensional moving image on a screen can give us goosebumps. We live in an increasingly media-saturated world, dominated by audio-visual media, and we learn much about other countries by watching films produced from within those societies. In order to be active participants--rather than passive receivers--in this discourse, it is important to understand these moving images as constructed and to understand the interplay of their components in making meaning. Studying film, the first audio-visual medium with a history of over 120 years, will give you an excellent basis to do so. We will work closely along one of the standard works, "Film Art: An Introduction" (Bordwell and Thompson, 2013, international edition). Over the course of the term, we will cover the principal aspects of film, its narrative form and style. We will also watch and analyse films together in class, in order to practice the concepts already acquired and to hone your writing about films in order to prepare you for the final film analytical essay. Classes will include a lecture on the chapter for the week, exercises, and discussion time to clarify points and concepts. You are required to work through the respective chapter prior to class, come prepared to ask questions and deepen your understanding of the topics discussed through the exercises. We will also have short quizzes to check your understanding of the topics discussed. For your final assignment, you will write an essay of 1,000 words, analysing a feature film of your choice.

The World in Modern and Contemporary Japanese Literature
ホルカ HOLCA, Irina	春 Spring	木 2 Thu.2
This course focuses on works of prose and poetry written by Japanese authors from the Meiji period to the early 2000s, which are set outside of Japan or engage with issues related to the world outside of Japan (mainly Europe and America). It encourages students to reflect on the ways in which Japanese literature was changed, in form and content, through its interaction with the "West" at the beginning of modernity, as well as on how contemporary Japanese authors contribute to the production of "global" literature nowadays.

Gender and Youth Culture in Japan
小野 五弥子 ONO, Sayako	夏 Summer	集中 Intensive
The course will examine the anthropological perspective on Japanese youth culture in relation to gender roles. The first half of the course discusses theoretical frameworks for gender issues, namely gender equality, LGBT issues and sexual harassment. We examine how the government, society, family and individuals address these issues. The second half of the course focuses on case studies related to youth culture, namely idol culture, the body and beauty ideals. We discuss how young people use this culture to represent their gender ideals.

Introduction to Sustainability in Contemporary Japanese Architecture
ブリド PULIDO, Jesús	秋 Fall	木 5 Thu.5
This course is intended to introduce students to the notions of sustainability in architecture and urban design within the Japanese context from the viewpoint of the cultural exchange between Japan and the World. The students will read and analyze written and audiovisual materials provided by the instructor to engage in in-class discussions. The course is organized into 4 main thematic areas; we will hold two workshops in class where students will discuss a given topic and then submit a short reflection. Prior knowledge of architecture and/or urban planning is not necessary, but you should be curious and proactive. Active learning, in-class work, and peer review are essential parts of this course; thus, you are expected to actively participate during class time.

Topics in Japanese Food Culture
モリス MORRIS, Jonathan	秋 Fall	水 4 Wed.4
Food is the most fundamental aspect of human society, but Food Studies and Food Culture are still young fields in academia. Food has played a hugely significant role in social, economic, religious and cultural life in Japan, but it has yet to receive the attention it deserves in the various fields of Japan Studies. This course aims to inspire young researchers to explore Food Studies approaches in Japan Studies. The class takes a topic-based format and includes active learning activities to stimulate discussion and critical thinking. Classic cuisines such as honzen, kaiseki and shojin and iconic favourites such as sushi and ramen are examined from a transnational perspective. Students are introduced to the critical discourse on Japanese food as it relates to topics including politicized issues such as whaling, domestic labour and production shortages and the slow food movement, or the roles of food in religious practice such as Zen Buddhism, mountain religion and pre-modern vegetarianism. Food technology, economics, distribution and materiality are discussed where appropriate. By the end of the course, students will have gained an appreciation of the intellectual and historical complexity, regional diversity and transnationality of food culture in Japan.

歴史の中の日本を知る 2/世界の中の日本 B		19180146/180206
Topics in Modern Japanese History
木村 正美 KIMURA, Masami	秋 Fall	金 2 Fri.2
This course reviews Japanese history from the mid-1800s to the 1970s. During this period, Japan developed from a semi-feudal, semi-centralized entity to a unified modern nation-state; but in the process of modernization, Japan transformed itself into an imperialist power outwardly; inwardly, it struggled to deal with two contradictory political and social dictates – the need for authoritarian control and aspirations for liberalism. After the defeat in WWII, Japan evolved through further transformation into a richer, and more democratic, more liberal society, but the Japanese kept facing the same dilemma and various problems occurring from their continuous search for modernity. We will look at interrelated political, socio-economic, and intellectual-cultural developments during these periods and deepen our understanding of critical themes in modern Japanese history.

Japanese Intellectual History
モリス MORRIS, Jonathan	秋 Fall	水 3 Wed.3
This English medium course introduces the field of Japanese intellectual history. Taking a topic-based approach; the instructor introduces both common misperceptions and generalizations relating to the history of ideas in various periods and the more nuanced and accurate narratives provided by recent scholarship. Where necessary, the lectures go outside of the general periodic framework to discuss the ways in which aspects of Japanese thought such as “Shinto” have developed over time, and the ways in which scholarly understandings and representations of these concepts have changed. This course will introduce the student to the intellectual history of Japan both as a body of knowledge, and as a methodology. Group discussion and summarization tasks on primary sources and key scholarship provide the opportunity for active learning and the development of research skills in this subject.

言語研究入門 8/言語研究入門 B		19211007/211004
An Invitation to Linguistics: Form, Structure, Meaning, and Use of Language
瀬楽 亨 SERAKU, Toru	夏 Summer	集中 Intensive
This course introduces the students to central areas in linguistics, including morphology, syntax, semantics, and pragmatics. In particular, the course focuses on syntax and pragmatics, (i) building on the previous findings of theoretical linguistics and general linguistics (typology) and (ii) drawing data from a wide range of languages including Japanese and English. Each class is primarily based on (i) the explanation of the topics by the teacher and (ii) discussion and presentations by the students. The course language is English, but I will use Japanese occasionally. The course handouts will be written in Japanese, but every technical term comes with its English translation.
言語研究入門 8/グローバルコミュニケーション研究入門 A		19211008/212001
Introduction to Intercultural Communication and Language Education
カーペンター CARPENTER, James	春 Spring	火 5 Tue.5
This class will focus on the relationship between language and culture. In this course we will explore this relationship in terms of its cultural, linguistic, social, and psychological aspects. While the content of this class refers to the relationship between language and culture in general, we will focus on aspects of English-speaking culture in particular. Especially, we will focus on the aspects of English-speaking culture that are relevant to foreign language education. Successful students must complete weekly readings, pass weekly quizzes, and participate in in-class discussions.
言語研究入門 8/グローバルコミュニケーション研究入門 B		19211009/212003
Introduction to Interpreting
池田 和子 IKEDA, Kazuko	秋 Fall	火 5 Tue.5
The course will cover topics such as the relationship between interpreting experience and language learning, research on and practice in the modern interpreting market, building a career as an interpreter, and interpreting theories. Student will listen to lectures in English and will check their understanding through regular quizzes. They will also conduct research in groups on interpreting and language education, as well as on interpreting studies in for Active Learning and in-class assignments.
言語研究入門 8/グローバルコミュニケーション研究入門 B ★Simple English		19211010/212002
Introduction to Intercultural Pragmatics and Second Language Education
リチャーズ RICHARDS, Paul	夏 Summer	集中 Intensive
This course provides students with an overview of the major areas of study in second language (L2) pragmatics. Particularly, students will participate in interactive lectures and group discussions designed to help them make connections between the course content and their own experiences with learning pragmatics in a language beyond their first. Because pragmatics deals with personal/cultural elements of language, a number of unique challenges arise in relation to pragmatics instruction. Students will learn about some of these challenges and then critically evaluate language teaching/learning materials according to how well they address these issues.
文化研究入門 2/総合文化研究入門 B		19211012/213005
Gender and Sexuality in Japan
小野 五弥子 ONO, Sayako	春 Spring	月 4 Mon.4
The course will examine what is necessary to achieve gender equality and why its systems and legislation are considered inadequate for preventing discrimination against minorities. The course begins with the theoretical frameworks of gender issues and then focuses more on details, including sexual violence and feminist activities organised by students.

文化研究入門 5/総合文化研究入門 B		19211015/213006
Introduction to American Short Stories
ローウェンステイン LOWENSTEIN, Marc	秋 Fall	火 5 Tue.5
Students will weekly read a selection of stories from the text, lead weekly discussions and present on the authors (depending on the number of students, this may be assigned to more than one student per week), and do short papers on a text or author of their choice. The final paper will be an in-depth analysis of one or more stories from the text, using citations.

*日本社会入門/多言語・多文化社会論概論 B		19J2003/312112
Introduction to Japanese Society
シートン SEATON, Philip	秋 Fall	金 3 Fri.3
Each week students learn about a different issue facing Japanese society in the 21st century. Students will read articles and book chapters for homework. Students will complete an Active Learning Hours Portfolio (reviews of academic papers around a particular theme). Students' grades are determined mainly by their performance in class mini exams.

言語学概論 1/言語学概論 A		19312008/311003
Key Topics in Sociolinguistics
ボルロンガン BORLONGAN, Ariane	春 Spring	金 1 Fri.1
The interaction of language and the society and the effects of such an interaction are among the most central in the study of human behavior and humanity's way of life so much so that what humanity and being human are may never be fully understood unless one makes a serious and intelligent inquiry on this astonishing interaction. Thus, this course explores the various facets of the interaction between language and society, looking at the macro- and micro-aspects of the said interaction. The course begins with how a sociolinguistic theory of language evolved, and most especially why. Speech community, (sociolinguistic) variables, and variation are essential factors in how language is produced and comprehended, and so these are also central to the themes which are to be discussed. The two broader divisions of sociolinguistic study are given a comprehensive discussion: The sociolinguistics of language is first covered, talking about the finer differences of language use across various social factors taking effect. And then, the sociolinguistics of society is taken up, focusing on the various issues the modern society has with language(s).

言語学概論 2/言語学概論 B		19312009/311006
Key Topics in Migration Linguistics
ボルロンガン BORLONGAN, Ariane	秋 Fall	金 1 Fri.1
Language plays a very important role in the migration process, as it contributes so much to the success of movement from one place to another, in so many ways. That said, scholarly attention must be given to and specialized study must be done on language in the context of migration. This course surveys the various topics related to migration and language, and introduces students to the field of migration linguistics. It presents a linguistic theory of migration and discusses the linguistic aspects of the migration process. It also covers the pressing issues migrants have in relation to language. It likewise provides a discussion of linguistic rights of migrants and the language policies relating to migrants. Finally, it orients students with methodologies and techniques in migration linguistics research.

北西ヨーロッパ文化研究 1 (英語文学) /ヨーロッパ文化研究 A(英米文学)		19411004/413018
Knowledge, Power, and Humanity 1
チルトン CHILTON, Myles	春 Spring	火 2 Tue.2
In this seminar, we will explore human limits and potentials in relation to knowledge, and the power gained from knowledge. First, we will discuss the ancient Greek myth of Prometheus, a story of a god who stole fire from Zeus and gave it to humans, along with other knowledge and technology. For this, he was punished. Second, we will read a version of the Prometheus myth, Mary Shelley's novel Frankenstein. It tells the story of Doctor Victor Frankenstein, who creates a living being, a 'monster' of horrific strength and ugliness. Disgusted at his actions, Frankenstein flees, and the monster is left to roam Europe in search of both his creator and redemption. The novel blends the Promethean themes of the dangers of knowledge, the power of nature, and what it means to be human. It is also considered the first science fiction novel, and in its investigations of the limits of human knowledge, introduces many of the problems that shaped a rapidly modernizing Europe in the early nineteenth century.

チルトン CHILTON, Myles	秋 Fall	火 2 Tue.2
Continuing our explorations of the relationship between knowledge, power, and humanity, this semester will look more closely at the impact of science and technology through the novel Brave New World. Published in 1931, Brave New World by English writer Aldous Huxley is one of modern English literature's most famous examples of a dystopian novel. A dystopia, or "negative utopia," is a vision of a world in which ideas and plans for a perfect society go terribly wrong. The novel tells the story of how a technologically advanced future society robs individuals of their humanity, and of how one character seeks to regain his. We will pay attention to what the novel says about modernity, and whether or not it makes relevant statements about our present time.

コミュニケーション論 1/コミュニケーション論 A		19412021/412025
GQ3 Global Mindset
カセラス KASERAS, Annette	春 Spring	水 5 Wed.5
Get ready for a heady ride, as we zoom out from the smallest to the largest scales of global intelligence (GQ3), and gain a glimpse of the galaxy within us. GQ3 isn't rocket science. But it does draw on the insights of astronauts & genetic scientists, to take intercultural communication to the next level. Each week, local and international students talk and ask questions in pairs/small groups. You will share visual images and "quotes" selected from core texts. You will develop dialogue skills to explore evidence, personal experience, and opinions in order to re-confirm and/or challenge your current understanding of what it means to be authentic yourself, and in communication with others. You will also have the chance to practice in experiential learning through simulations. This process, gives you the chance to uncover unconscious biases, develop collaboration strategies, and acquire comparative knowledge about your home and 'partner' countries, in a regional & global context. The course is structured using the GQ3 dynamic systems model: We explore authenticity and collaboration through the neurochemistry of emotional and social intelligence (EQ-SQ) and living dynamics of culture-gene interactions (CQ-GQ). I value students collaboration on this cutting-edge research. Participation & assignments are in 'international English'. Students are welcome to confirm assignment instructions in English, Japanese or French.

International Business Communication 1
ハスン HASAN, Zahir	春 Spring	水 5 Wed.5
In this course, first 4 units of the textbook Business Partner will be used to combine some of the most stimulating recent ideas from the world of business with a strongly task-based approach. Role plays and case studies are regular features of each unit. Throughout the course, the students are encouraged to use their own experience and opinions to maximize involvement and learning. The Course Book provides input in reading, speaking, and listening, with guidance for writing tasks too. Every unit contains vocabulary-development activities. Business Partner is a flexible course designed for a variety of learners. It is suitable for students with mixed abilities, requirements and interests and for varied class sizes where the common requirement is to learn professional English language and develop key skills for the workplace. When talking to learners, their reasons for studying business English almost always relate to their employability. Many tertiary students want to maximise their chances of finding a job in an international environment, while in-work professionals want to communicate effectively in their workplace and improve their future career prospects. Other learners may simply need to study and pass a business English exam in order to complete their overall degree program.

A Critical Overview of the Japanese Cinema 2
ハウカンブ HAUKAMP, Iris	秋 Fall	月 2 Mon.2
This course surveys the Japanese cinema, from the postwar to the contemporary. The Japanese film industry, with its long history, vibrant culture, and prolific output as produced a wide range of works, many of them reaching “canonical” status in film history, others remaining largely obscure, both in Japan and abroad. It has also produced an expansive array of scholarly responses, and played a crucial role in the development of film studies as an academic discipline. In this class, we will survey the history as well as the historiography of Japanese narrative film by reading a selection of the aforementioned scholarly responses, chosen either for their prominence (or notoriety) or due to their discussion of a significant film or film-historical movement. By focussing on articles or book chapters published in English, we will also gain an impression on how Japanese cinema is being presented, received, discussed, and categorised outside Japan. Students will also work on a group project, analysing one film and present on your findings. Students will gain a good knowledge of key texts in the discipline, as well as experience in reading and applying scholarly articles.

Cultural Studies
フィゲロア FIGUEROA, Pablo	冬 Winter	集中 Intensive
This course is survey of the main discussions, achievements, and problems related to the broad field of academic enquiry known as Cultural Studies. The field of cultural studies is so vast, however, that any semester course requires a selection of contents, since a truly comprehensive account would be virtually impossible. Consequently, this class offers a particular version of cultural studies that incorporates topics analyzed from an anthropological viewpoint. Based on close readings of selected writers, we will discuss the key concepts, texts, and scope that make up cultural studies today. By paying attention to its history, development, theory, and practice, students will learn the importance, influence, and legacy of cultural studies in the contemporary world.

Introduction to International Law
根岸 陽太 NEGISHI, Yota	春 Spring	木 4 Thu.4
International law transcends the mere regulation of inter-state relations and significantly impacts our everyday lives. This course is designed to provide foundational knowledge and insights for understanding international society through the lens of international law. To foster a practical understanding of international law, each session will commence with an analysis of current news events that illustrate the structural challenges within the international legal framework. Following each class, students will be required to compose a reaction paper. These submissions will form the basis for the lecturer's feedback in subsequent sessions.

Spectres of Community in East Asia
今政 肇 IMAMASA, Hajime	春 Spring	金 5 Fri.5
We will look at various manifestations of communal struggle in the past across East Asia in the first half of the course. Knowing and understanding these events are crucial in understanding how communities have increasingly come under attack in the process of modernization with ever increasing concentration of symbolic and material power in the imperial metropolises. We will then, in the second half of the course, move on to discuss various contemporary attempts to re-connect and re-compose communities across East Asia. We will also incorporate contemporary theories of community in our class to guide our understanding. Small group discussions will be held throughout the course. While value is placed on group work, students are expected to compose their own interpretation of the class at the end.

20th Century East and Southeast Asia and Politics of Memory: Focus on Japan
岡田 泰平 OKADA, Taihei	秋 Fall	月 2 Mon.2
History is not really about memorization. It enables us to think how each one of us should perceive the world and check on whether one's perspective is appropriate. Sadly, no one in this age is beyond nationalism. The best we can do is to reflect upon the stance each one of us takes. Although this is a lecture class, I do not mean to preach how you should think, but simply provide food for thought, so to speak. I am expecting active participation from not only 10 percent of you (participating students), but from every single one of you. For this academic year, we will focus on Japan's relation to the rest of Asia and its memories. I will use the following website extensively to post relevant references as well as the contents of in-class discussion. https://taiheiokada.com/

The United Nations: The Organization and its Work
高瀬 千賀子 TAKASE, Chikako	冬 Winter	集中 Intensive
The United Nations has been the centerpiece of the world order since its establishment in 1945. Over the past 77 years, the United Nations has been playing a preeminent role in the issues of international peace and security, development, human rights and humanitarian affairs. It has passed through the changing world situations and in recent years, it is facing yet another hard situation. Currently, Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) are forming the framework of the UN Development Agenda, "Transforming our world: the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development," and the work of the UN system and other main international organizations in implementing them. At just past the mid-point towards the 2030, however, we are surrounded by the unexpected situation, such as COVID-19, Ukraine and other conflicts. The course will begin by glancing at the UN system organigram, ensuring the positions of the principal organs of the United Nations and the UN system organization. The focus will be placed on the work of the Economic and Social Council, which is tasked to coordinate the work of the specialized agencies as well as the funds and programmes of the United Nations system in the area of international economic, social, cultural, educational, health and related matters. Since the adoption of the sustainable development goals, the Economic and Social Council has been responsible together with the General Assembly for the implementation of the sustainable development goals. Then we will try to assess the current situation, focusing on their effects on some of the principal organs, and consider how the global process is trying to address these unexpected situations. We will be looking at the outcome of the SDG Summit (2023) and the global process lined up in the near future, especially the Summit of the Future, which is planned to take place in mid-September 2024. We will also consider the value of multilateralism. At the end, we will be looking at how the implementation on SDGs are going and how much more efforts need to be provided to the aim of Building Back Better.

Cultures of Mobilities, Migration and Transnationalism
ニャムンジョ NYAMNJOH, Henrietta	秋 Fall	火 2 Tue.2
Human mobilities and migration have been a constant phenomenon, appearance, and process throughout history. With advances in information and Communication Technologies, migration trends have morphed into mobilities such that those who stay can be mobile while staying put. Consequently, mobilities are not limited only to the movement of persons, but considers the circulation of objects, food, practices/ideas and cultures.

The course entails working with the main concepts used in migration, mobilities and transnational studies to build and analyse typologies of migratory flows and think critically about theories and empirical research strategies. We will use broad definitions of mobilities, migration and transnationalism and critically engage with and interrogate the various concepts as theoretical approaches and scientific research methods. This foregrounds migration as highly complex and multidimensional reality, and hence, requires to be analysed from different vantage points and discourses. Under these broad categories, we will unpack concepts of mobilities and migration: trends and patterns, migrant communities (Hometown Associations) and new identities, childhood mobilities and migration, cultures of food and eating, transnationalism/transnational families/transnational livelihoods, and Hometown Associations. Students will get to appreciate the complexities of transnational migration and its impact on contemporary social relationships and cultural life, and to explore how migration is changing contemporary forms of relatedness (gender, kinship, and other forms of intimacy).

There has been a recent interest in food, especially within migration studies. Here, we are interested in food as a universal medium for the expression of a variety of cultural issues among migrant communities - rituals, gender relations, marriage, kinship and identity. What is the role of food as a medium of exchange and consumption, sociality, and identity?

International Cooperation – An Introduction
バリガ BARRIGA, William	冬 Winter	集中 Intensive
Even if most people today are not paying attention to it in their daily routine, the world is revolving and going about its business around various forms of international cooperation whether it is economic, developmental, humanitarian, political, peace and security, technology, human rights, environmental, social or cultural. The course will look into the generalities of international cooperation, its various forms and categories, theories and practices, as well as challenges and opportunities. This will heighten the students' level of awareness and appreciation of contemporary agenda in the international arena particularly those within the ambit of the United Nations. At the same time, they will be able to recognize the direct link between local domestic issues and international cooperation, and the inter-connectedness of all peoples.

Foreign Relations of Modern Japan: The Tokugawa Period to the Present
木村 正美 KIMURA, Masami	秋 Fall	月 3 Mon.3
In this class, we will look at how Japan explored its foreign policy and relations in response to the changing international environment since the 1600s. Starting with Japan's foreign relations during the time of "sakoku," we will see main themes of Japanese diplomacy since the mid-nineteenth century divided roughly into three periods: the 1850s-90s, the 1900s-1940s, and the 1940s-today – each of which represents the time when Japan was faced with the advent of Western imperialism, turned itself into an imperialist power, and reestablished its foreign relations as a U.S. ally/ a member of the Free World after the defeat in WWII. Through lectures, reading assignments, and discussions, you can not only increase your general knowledge of foreign relations of modern Japan but also nurture your ability to think historically and critically.
日本史・社会概論		19J3007
Poverty, Crime, and Prostitution in the Early Modern Megacity
ポーター PORTER, John	春 Spring	月 3 Mon.3
This course will analyze the history of the poverty, criminality, and vice in major cities during the multi-century transition from a pre-capitalist order organized around the principle of status to a liberal, capitalist system in which there was far less extra-economic intervention. Specifically, students will examine the lives and livelihoods of the poor and disenfranchised, including those that survived by engaging in illicit professions. Utilizing court records, legal proclamations, and police documents, it attempts to elucidate the social history of unlicensed panhandlers, unregistered vagrants, unlicensed brothel proprietors, gambling syndicates, bandits, and underworld figures. At the same time, it will examine the various mechanisms utilized by the authorities to regulate the sex trade, manage poverty, prevent criminal activity, and maintain law and order in the city. Accordingly, it will focus heavily on the regulatory functions performed by local social groups, such as licensed brothel operators' guilds, licensed beggar associations, and organizations of flophouse proprietors. Thereby, it seeks to understand the role that legally-sanctioned social groups played in efforts to police individuals who existed on the margins or outside of the legally-sanctioned status order.

日本政治・経済 1		19J4007
State and Politics in Modern Japan
トリフ TRIFU, Ioan	春 Spring	火 3 Tue.3
From the middle of the 19th century to the middle of the 20th century, Japan underwent a series of intense transformations that radically overhauled its political system. This course is an introduction to Japanese domestic politics from the 1840s to 1945, looking at the formation of Japan's modern bureaucracy, the establishment of a Constitution, the birth of a national identity, the rise and fall of party politics and the development of state control. We will also address some crucial questions to highlight the plurality of participants in the construction of modern Japan and to better conceptualize the processes and events that shaped this period: what was the place for women in such a political system? What was the role for the common people and social mobilization? How were the colonial territories governed? What was the so-called Taishō democracy? Why was political violence so prevalent and was Japan fascist after the 1930s?

日本政治・経済 2		19J4008
State and Politics in Contemporary Japan
トリフ TRIFU, Ioan	秋 Fall	火 3 Tue.3
This course provides a general overview of contemporary Japanese politics and policymaking. It will present, first, the main political institutions that shape domestic politics and governmental action at the national and local levels before introducing the diversity of actors that are involved in these processes, from political parties to civil society. The last part will focus on specific issues that have gained much public attention in recent years, such as the place of religion in politics, the question of nationalism, and the relationship between gender & politics.

木村 正美 KIMURA, Masami	春 Spring	月 4 Mon.4
In this class, we will overview Japanese diplomatic relations from the Bakumatsu/ Meiji Restoration to 1945, with particular focus on their relations with the United States, China, and Korea. More specifically, we will see how, as the international order in East Asia was being transformed, Japan explored and established its position, turning itself into an emerging imperialist power in Asia. Through lectures, reading assignments, and discussions, you can not only increase your general knowledge of prewar Japan's foreign relations but also nurture your understanding of critical issues lying in current Japanese relations – such as Japan's expansionism, colonial rule, emigration, race relations, and the Asia-Pacific War.

Diplomatic History of Modern Japan 2
木村 正美 KIMURA, Masami	秋 Fall	月 4 Mon.4
In this class, we will overview Japanese diplomatic relations since 1945, with particular focus on their relations with the United States, China, and South Korea. More specifically, we will see how Japan's foreign relations have been informed by the Cold War – or U.S. Cold War strategy for Asia – and understand how Japan has explored and built up its relations with China/ Taiwan, South Korea, Southeast Asia, as well as the Soviet Union/ Russia within the framework of the U.S.-Japan alliance. Through lectures, reading assignments, and discussions, you can not only increase your general knowledge of postwar Japanese diplomatic relations with these countries/ areas but also nurture your understanding of critical issues lying in them – such as the pacifist constitution and the U.S.-Japan security treaty, the San Francisco peace treaty and the issue of reparation/ compensation, territorial disputes, and the so-called history problem.

Introduction to Subtitling
ハウカンブ HAUKAMP, Iris	春 Spring	月 2 Mon.2
Subtitling has become part of our everyday life thanks to its constant presence in the media we consume. But what is it really, and who makes the subtitles we watch, and how? Academically, subtitling is now considered a mode of Audiovisual Translation (AVT), a branch of Translation Studies that deals with the translation of film, TV, and other audiovisual. Subtitling has a rich history within Japan dating back to the 1930s. Furthermore, the English subtitling of Japanese media has a unique place within AVT thanks to the ever-increasing popularity of Japanese film and, especially, anime. Combined with the stark cultural differences between Japan and much of the rest of the world, subtitling Japanese audiovisual media is a prime candidate for the focus of any AVT course. During the semester, we will discuss and analyse the theory of subtitling, which has become increasingly popular in research since the 1990s, as well as learn the practice of subtitling through several workshop-style classes, where we will subtitle clips together (please bring a computer and, if possible, earphones for the second part of the course). This course will be conducted in English, with some Japanese. Translating from Japanese to English will be required, but assistance will be provided.

A Critical Overview of the Japanese Cinema 2
ハウカンブ HAUKAMP, Iris	秋 Fall	月 2 Mon.2
This course surveys the Japanese cinema, from the postwar to the contemporary. The Japanese film industry, with its long history, vibrant culture, and prolific output as produced a wide range of works, many of them reaching “canonical” status in film history, others remaining largely obscure, both in Japan and abroad. It has also produced an expansive array of scholarly responses, and played a crucial role in the development of film studies as an academic discipline. In this class, we will survey the history as well as the historiography of Japanese narrative film by reading a selection of the aforementioned scholarly responses, chosen either for their prominence (or notoriety) or due to their discussion of a significant film or film-historical movement. By focussing on articles or book chapters published in English, we will also gain an impression on how Japanese cinema is being presented, received, discussed, and categorised outside Japan. Students will also work on a group project, analysing one film and present on your findings. Students will gain a good knowledge of key texts in the discipline, as well as experience in reading and applying scholarly articles.

Animals and Nature in Modern and Contemporary Japanese Literature
ホルカ HOLCA, Irina	春 Spring	火 4 Tue.4
This course introduces recent critical approaches to analysing the relationship between human and non-human beings, as well as theoretical reflections on how animals and nature are represented in art. It then explores the various ways animals are described in modern and contemporary Japanese literature, from the real cattle slaughtered in Tōson's “The Broken Commandment,” to the fantastic talking bear in Kawakami's “God Bless You.”
