★ Simple English : この授業は、英語のみによる講義に慣れていない学生向けに、より平易な英語で開講されます。 成績は原則英語力ではなく、授業への取り組みによって評価されます。

This course is taught in simpler language than regular lectures in English. It is especially recommended to students who are not familiar with lectures taught in English only. Student performance is assessed by its content rather than the English language level.

*履修者数を制限するため、担当教員による抽選・選抜がおこなわれる場合があります。Simple English クラスでは、 英語による講義に慣れていない学部生の履修が優先されます。履修希望者の数によっては、ISEP 生はこのクラスを履 修できない可能性があります。

To limit the number of students, the instructor might conduct a lottery or selection to determine who can register for the course. In Simple English courses, priority will be given to the undergraduates who are not used to lectures in English. ISEP students might not be able to take the course if the instructor should reduce class size.

★ Simple English:この授業は、英語のみによる講義に慣れていない学生向けに、より平易な英語で開講されます。 成績は原則英語力ではなく、授業への取り組みによって評価されます。

This course is taught in simpler language than regular lectures in English. It is especially recommended to students who are not familiar with lectures taught in English only. Student performance is assessed by its content rather than the English language level.

*履修者数を制限するため、担当教員による抽選・選抜がおこなわれる場合があります。Simple English クラスでは、英語による講義に慣れていない学部生の履修が優先されます。履修希望者の数によっては、ISEP 生はこのクラスを履修できない可能性があります。

To limit the number of students, the instructor might conduct a lottery or selection to determine who can register for the course. In Simple English courses, priority will be given to the undergraduates who are not used to lectures in English. ISEP students might not be able to take the course if the instructor should reduce class size.

MORITA, Kyoko	Spring	Fri.4

Key concepts will be reviewed at the beginning of the course: verbal and nonverbal aspects of communication (e.g. pragmatic failure, silence, kinesic channeling, personal spacing, temporal dimension) and the politics of cultural difference.

In the latter part of the course, emphasis will be on the students'analyzing their own and others' socioculturally shaped ways of believing, valuing, and interacting in order to identify and understand potential sources of miscommunication, and to develop interpersonal strategies to resolve conflicts. The class will be interactive and flexible, including activities, simulations, discussions, and presentations.

Culture, Power, Identities		★ Simple English
MORITA, Kyoko	Fall	Fri.4

This course focuses on social minorities in various countries, taking into account their struggles due to inequality of power and identity politics. Students will need to understand what it is like to live as a person from minority groups in the oppressive environment. At the same time, students will discuss controversies over current political correctness and silencing in minority studies, as well as in everyday life.

Language Revitalization and Community Engagement
中山 俊秀	冬学期	集中
NAKAYAMA, Toshihide	Winter	Intensive

This course is an examination of planning strategies, protocols and methods of data collection, analysis and organization appropriate for field activities associated with language and culture preservation and revitalization. The course will explore methodological issues, strategies for community involvement, protocols as well as ethical and intellectual property concerns through lectures, discussions and prospective project proposals by students.

In this course, you'll also examine formal and informal approaches to language teaching and learning in Indigenous community settings. Topics include:

forms of language acquisition

• Indigenous teaching and learning strategies

• how strategies are related to community needs and goals

• the role of community and community members in teaching and learning

The emphasis is on strategies for mobilizing social and political forces for linguistic and cultural maintenance and revival.

The instruction for this course will be given by Dr. Sumittra Suraratdecha (Mahidol University, RILCA).

Topics in Film Analysis
HAUKAMP. Iris	Spring	Tue.2

This is an introductory class to 'classical' film analysis. We will explore how films 'work', how they convey meaning, and how a two-dimensional moving image on a screen can give us goose bumps. We live in an increasingly media-saturated world, dominated by audio-visual media, and we learn much about other countries by watching films produced from within those societies. In order to be active participants--rather than passive receivers--in this discourse, it is important to understand these moving images as constructed and to understand the interplay of their components in making meaning. Studying film, the first audio-visual medium with a history of over 120 years, will give you an excellent basis to do so.

We will work closely along one of the standard works, ""Film Art: An Introduction"" (Bordwell and Thompson, 2013, international edition). Over the course of the term, we will cover the principal aspects of film, its narrative form and style. We will also watch and analyse films together in class, in order to practice the concepts already acquired and to hone your writing about films in order to prepare you for the final film analytical essay.

Classes will include a lecture on the chapter for the week, exercises, and discussion time to clarify points and concepts. You are required to work through the respective chapter prior to class, come prepared to ask questions and deepen your understanding of the topics discussed through the exercises. We will also have short quizzes to check your understanding of the topics discussed. For your final assignment, you will write an essay of 1,500 words, analysing a feature film of your choice.

MORRIS, Jon	Spring	Fri.5
Food is the most fundamental as	pect of human society but	Food Studies and Food Culture is still a

Food is the most fundamental aspect of human society, but Food Studies and Food Culture is still a young field in academia. Food has played a hugely significant role in social, economic, religious and cultural life in Japan, but it has yet to receive the attention it deserves in the various fields of Japan Studies. This course aims to inspire young researchers to utilize Food Studies approaches in Japan Studies.

The class takes a topic based format and includes active learning activities to stimulate discussion and critical thinking. Classic cuisines such as honzen, kaiseki and shojin and iconic favourites such as sushi and ramen are examined from a transnational perspective. Students are introduced to the critical discourse on Japanese food as it relates to topics including politicized issues such as whaling, domestic labour and production shortages and the slow food movement, or the roles of food in religious practice such as Zen Buddhism, mountain religion and pre-modern vegetarianism. Food technology, economics, distribution and materiality are discussed where appropriate.

Many documentary materials will be introduced, and all students will submit a menu analysis with guidance from the instructor in addition to a research essay. By the end of the course, students will have gained an appreciation of the intellectual and historical complexity, regional diversity and transnationality of food culture in Japan.

Japan's Capitals: Tokyo and Kyoto
モリス	春期	金 2

MORRIS, JonSpringFri.2This course examines Japan's cultural capital Kyoto and its political capital Tokyo. Both cities wereestablished as new power bases for elites, and the leading roles they have played in Japanese historyand culture could very easily have been held by other locations. The circumstances that led to theirfounding are thus the necessary starting point. With the general historical background anddevelopment explained, this course goes on to provide a survey of the economy, religion, architecture,infrastructure and culture of Kyoto and Tokyo.

The use of realia and material culture, particularly maps, is a key teaching method. All students will write a report on an area of Tokyo or Kyoto using cartographic materials. The wider cultural impact of the cities is presented, with reference to tourism, publishing, film, music, art and literature in various periods. The crafts and consumer goods produced in traditional neighborhoods are another topic for study, and a class each will be devoted to the food culture of Kyoto and Tokyo past and present. Students will produce a research essay on a relevant topic of their choice with the guidance of the instructor.

This course will examine the features of the Japanese education system and its issues from sociological/anthropological perspective. We will begin the course with an overview of postwar policies and practices and will examine key features of various stages of education. We will then examine contemporary social problems in the realm of education, both at the level of discourse and practice. We will highlight the competing interests of various stakeholders of education as well as the impact and/or significance of internationalization/globalization, class and gender in Japan throughout the course.

MES, TomSummerIntensiveOur use of media and cultural commodities has become increasingly complex. From a young age, we learn to navigate and connect the multiple levels on which media objects operate, and through phenomena such as fan fiction or vocaloids, we even know how to turn them to our own hands. Perhaps the most sophisticated examples of such media convergence can be found in the popular culture and media landscape of Japan. Yet, many of Japan's pop-cultural objects – from Naruto to Baby Metal – reach a global audience, indicating a tension between cultural specificity and universal appeal. Topics in Japanese Wartime Film and Society
HAUKAMP, Iris	Fall	Tue.2

The connections between cinema and war are as intricate as those between film and the society it stands in constant discourse with. This course examines those connections with a critical focus on the Japanese film industry's position and output during times of armed conflict.

The course is structured roughly chronologically from the coinciding emergence of modern warfare and of the modern medium film to the end of the last global war in August 1945, but is centred around various topics, such as empire, censorship, or occupation, that will help us understand the critical tension between concepts of film as art, propaganda vehicle, and profit-making product. We will examine how and why modern war acted as a catalyst for cinema as an intrinsically modern phenomenon and how the cinematic representation of war interacts with the societies involved. Students will work with films as primary texts as well as primary and secondary sources. Over the course of the term, students will acquire basic skills in film history research and film studies. Basic film studies skills will be introduced via the clips used in class and the screenings (all films and clips will be shown with English subtitles). For their assignments, students are required to find and watch relevant films outside of class.

Topics in Modern Japanese Hist	ory
KIMURA Masami	Foll	Eni 9

KIMURA, Masami Fail Fri.2 This course reviews Japanese history from the mid-1800s to the 1970s. During this period, Japan developed from a semi-feudal, semi-centralized entity to a unified modern nation-state; but in the process of modernization, Japan transformed itself into an imperialist power outwardly; inwardly, it struggled to deal with two contradictory political and social dictates – the need for authoritarian control and aspirations of liberalism. After defeat in WWII, Japan evolved through further transformations to become a richer, and more democratic, more liberal society, but the Japanese kept facing the same dilemma and various problems occurring from their continuous search for modernity. We will look at interrelated political, socio-economic, and intellectual-cultural developments during these periods and deepen our understanding of critical themes in modern Japanese history.

globalization has in the lives of people, organizations and cultures. How has Japan and Asia been transformed as a product of globalization? What have been, so far, its measurable effects? How can globalization help alleviate poverty and bring about world peace? What is the role of the Japanese state in highly contested processes of social change? Reflecting on these issues will help students build a solid conceptual framework for analyzing the global society, Japan's place in the world, and its changing sociopolitical dynamics.

The interaction of language and the society and the effects of such an interaction are among the most central in the study of human behavior and humanity's way of life so much so that what humanity and being human are may never be fully understood unless one makes a serious and intelligent inquiry on this astonishing interaction. Thus, this course explores the various facets of the interaction between language and society, looking at the macro- and micro-aspects of the said interaction.

The course begins with how a sociolinguistic theory of language evolved, and most especially why. Speech community, (sociolinguistic) variables, and variation are essential factors in how language is produced and comprehended, and so these are also central to the themes which are to be discussed.

The two broader divisions of sociolinguistic study are given a comprehensive discussion: The sociolinguistics of language is first covered, talking about the finer differences of language use across various social factors taking effect. And then, the sociolinguistics of society is taken up, focusing on the various issues the modern society has with language(s).

Becoming more aware of very basic differences in the way Eastern and Western populations perceive the world is a first step to adapting, in a healthy way, to the everyday stresses of living and working in a new culture, whether at home or abroad. A second step is to understand both cultural differences and human similarities. Drawing on ground-breaking collaborations between cultural psychologists and evolutionary psychologists, this course offers a sound foundation for finding common ground, at work or play, in whichever part of our planet you find yourself.

The history of Slovenia chronicles the period of the Slovenian territory from the 5th century BC to the present. In the Early Bronze Age, Proto-Illyrian tribes settled an area stretching from present-day Albania to the city of Trieste. Slovenian territory was part of the Roman Empire, and it was devastated by Barbarian incursions in late Antiquity and Early Middle Ages, since the main route from the Pannonian plain to Italy ran through present-day Slovenia. Alpine Slavs, ancestors of modern-day Slovenians, settled the area in the late 6th Century A.D. The Holy Roman Empire controlled the land for nearly 1,000 years, and between the mid 14th century and 1918 most of Slovenia was under Habsburg rule. In 1918, Slovenes formed Yugoslavia along with Serbs and Croats, while a minority came under Italy. The state of Slovenia was created in 1945 as part of federal Yugoslavia. Slovenia and NATO.

In this class, we will go over selected key themes of the Allied Occupation of Japan that have a lot of implications for postwar Japan – such as constitutional amendment, the Tokyo Trial, economic reform, the occupation of Okinawa, the San Francisco peace, and the U.S.-Japan alliance. By learning U.S. presurrender planning, the occupation structure, and individual reform policies, we will also find differences and similarities between the occupation of Japan, which is normally praised as a great "success," and other cases, which are less successful or judged clearly a "failure," the most representative of which is the occupation of Iraq. Each student is expected to case study another example of foreign occupation for a comparative analysis and contribute research findings for further class discussion.

KIMURA, Masami	Fall	Mon. 4

In this class, we will overview Japanese international relations since 1945, with particular focus on their relations with the United States, China, and South Korea. More specifically, we will see how Japan's foreign relations have been informed by the Cold War – or U.S. Cold War strategy for Asia – and understand how Japan has explored and built up relations with China/ Taiwan, South Korea, Southeast Asia, as well as the Soviet Union/ Russia within the framework of the U.S.-Japan alliance. Through lecture, reading assignments, and discussion, you can not only increase your general knowledge of postwar Japanese diplomatic relations with these countries/ areas but also nurture your understanding of critical issues lying in them –such as the pacifist constitution and the U.S.-Japan security treaty, the San Francisco peace treaty and the issue of reparations and compensations, territorial disputes, and the so-called history problem.
